

Something different to enthuse your students about foreign languages?

- FUN! and accessible for all
- A very different yet relevant approach to languages
- Insight to a varied and enriching career with languages

Mark Wingfield from MAX enjoys a fulfilling career utilising his language skills (see overleaf) and has developed:

- 1 hour long introductory seminars
- Tailored assertiveness, anti bully and confidence courses (delivered in foreign languages)

Mark always provides some background as to how he has developed a career in export sales and marketing and ultimately set up a business with languages at its core. Explaining through example that you don't have to be perfect at languages to hold down a great job, Mark uses his imperfect French to demonstrate the importance of communication. His German is fluent because of living in Germany– just as the children can learn a preferred language in any EU country they choose.

The students get involved in the presentations from the start and are invited to share their fears and dreams about using languages. Minds are opened to the sheer fantastic variety and opportunity that languages can bring – which are now so accessible via the web, EU citizenship, DVD etc.

“It was an amazing day, the children arrived looking bored and uninterested as usual slouching around etc and they underwent a complete transformation. You were great.” NTU

“We all found your talk interesting and inspiring. The pupils will have certainly got the message on the important role that languages will play in their future careers.” South Wolds

Book MAX to provide some essential lifeskills and provide a different perspective to languages which the students will enjoy and remember. MAX has worked with many different schools and colleges and is passionate about enthusing children to continue and enrich their language studies.

Vorsprung durch Sprachen!

A personal story of what languages can do for you, by Mark Wingfield of MW Sigma MAX Conflict Mgt

12th November 07, Marriott Hotel in Munich. 3 day Management Training Programme provided by MW Sigma in German.

Here a communications exercise results in the successful launch of a Rakete!

MW Sigma was selected to provide this training partly on the basis of international management and training experience, but crucially because of German language skills.

Rocket/die Rakete ready for take off..... Let languages help you blast off! Mark Wingfield can be reached on 0844 8700 629

Because I chose to do a German 'O' level and then 'A' Level, I managed to secure a place on an interesting Business Studies degree course which enabled me to work and study in Germany. I was then much more employable with a very good standard of German. I have since had the privilege to have been employed by a number of very successful, prestigious companies where I have been able to use my German and French, including the famous names you can see below:

I now thoroughly enjoy running my own company, where I also provide life-changing training in stress management through HeartMath (used in schools, business and sport), conflict management and self defence. Without my language skills I would have had a much duller life. I wouldn't for instance have been able to train in a specific self defence style in Germany without my language ability!
